

Get paediatric support by phone, 24/7

If you're a parent, you know how stressful it is when your child is sick. When do you take your little one to the ER if they have a fever? Here's how we're helping to make parenting a little less stressful, with Paed-IQ.

PAED-IQ BABYLINE: EXTRA SUPPORT WHEN YOU NEED IT

For first-time parents it's not often easy to know when a situation is a medical emergency, or when you should just wait it out. Sometimes all you need is a reassuring, knowledgeable voice to give you some guidance. That's exactly what the Paed-IQ BabyLine is – extra support when you need it.

ADVICE IS A PHONE CALL AWAY

Through the Paed-IQ BabyLine our members receive professional medical advice, when needed. This advisory service is available 24/7, 365 for all Fedhealth members with children under the age of 14, at no extra cost.

REGISTERED NURSES ON CALL

Expert health advice is given by registered nurses and covers a range of topics like home care, clinic referrals, primary care referrals, GP referrals, and after-hours care. The nurses on call will give you the best advice on handling any health concern your child might have. And if something is a medical emergency, they'll refer you to the best medical facility that can treat your child.
